BASLER TO RETIRE.

Stock of Furniture, Carpets, Etc., Being Cut Down—Every Article Offered at a Bargain.
Joseph Basler will retire from business in Jendleton January 1, having contracted to transfer his business to his successor after that date. During the time Mr. Basler remains in business he will devote his time to reducing his stock to meet the purchase price, and in order to do this will cut the selling price on every article in the store as he must get rid of the goods.
At this sale goods are not advertised below cost, but a guarantee is given that every article in the store will be sold below regular price and some articles at actual cost. It will pay people figuring on investing in furniture to call and investigate Basler's offers before buying, as it will mean money saved for them. The going out of business will close January 1.
Mr. Basler after retiring from business will, with his family, take a trip to his old home in Germany, where they will spend several months.

AGAINST HUME'S MEMORY.

Seattle Church Members Object to "Open Town" Record of Ex-Mayor.
Fifteen church members, most of them clergymen, last night filed with the council a protest against the proposed dedication of the square at Fifth and Cedar streets to the late Thomas J. Hume, says the Seattle Star. Among them were A. S. Allen, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Rev. J. Cairns, of the Fremont Baptist church; Rev. J. M. Weaver, of the Kirkland Congregational church; Rev. Owen Jones, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. W. A. Spaulding, of the United Presbyterian church; F. H. Luecke, H. F. Gould and F. M. Slater.
The councilmen looked upon the remonstrance as an aspersion to the memory of the dead mayor, tabling the protest before it was read. Later they directly rebuked the churchmen by passing resolutions revering the memory of the former chief executive, and calling attention to the fact that six years of his administration were the greatest in the history of the city. The clergymen said they had no censure for Judge Hume's character, but of his official record.
They spoke as follows:
"Our contention is that Mr. Hume's public reputation is based upon his frankly avowed, well known and relentlessly carried out policy with regard to certain forms of vice—commonly known as the wide-open policy.
"We believe that policy was essentially wrong in principle and unwise in policy.
"We think the future historians of our city will slightly designate the wide-open policy for which Mr. Hume consistently stood, a black stain upon our civic life.
"And we believe it is unwise for the municipality to commemorate the public services of Mr. Hume, because his name is inseparably and rightly associated in the public thought with a policy which more than any other has brought discredit upon our city."

HORTON CAPTURED

TAKEN IN WALLA WALLA
AFTER 250 MILE CHASE.

Shrewd and Nimble Colored Man Went East From Pendleton and Then Doubled Back to This Place and Went North on Last Evening's Mixed Train—Horton is Said to Have Served a Term at Walla Walla for Robbery—LeRoy is Recovering Gradually From the Razor Cuts.

After a flight of more than 250 miles, during which time he twice slipped from the grasp of the officers on his trail, Ira D. Horton, the negro wanted in Pendleton on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill and rob, is under arrest in Walla Walla. He was taken by City Marshal Alvah Brown last night as he left the Pendleton freight train, upon which he was stealing a ride. Deputy Sheriff C. P. Davis, of the local office, went to Walla Walla this morning to secure the prisoner.

Horton attacked with a razor and dangerously wounded Edward LeRoy, his colored employer, at an early hour Tuesday morning. He made his escape in the darkness, before the police arrived. When next heard from he was beating his way into La Grande on an eastbound passenger train. Night Watchman Wade of that city attempted to arrest the desperado and fired five shots at him, but the negro escaped in the darkness.

Deputy Sheriff McLaughlin of Union county, discovered Horton in a freight car at Telocaset, a small station west of North Powder. The officer sealed the car, intending to arrest the negro when he reached North Powder, but when that station was reached it was discovered that Horton had cut a hole in the car door, broken the seal and escaped. He was not heard from again until he ran afoul of the Walla Walla police. It is presumed he came into Pendleton early yesterday morning aboard of a freight train, lay in hiding until night and then caught the freight to Walla Walla.

Horton is said to have served a term in the Washington state penitentiary for robbery committed in Tacoma. His mother resides in the Sound City, and he was evidently trying to reach her when apprehended.

LeRoy, the victim of Horton's razor, is slightly improved, and his attending physician is hopeful of his recovery. The patient does not believe Horton succeeded in carrying away anything from the house after the attack. Assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill or rob is punishable by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not more than 10 years. Where robbery follows the assault the punishment is not less than five, nor more than 20 years imprisonment.

Astoria Needs Lights.

The east end is sorely in need of lights. The city pays almost $5000 yearly for street lights, and out of a desire to keep down this expense account the council has been disposed to deny requests from property owners for more lights.—Astoria Astorian.
